

Concurrent Technologies Corporation

Concurrent technologies Corporation is working on a technology commercialization project with the Department of Defense. They are evaluating cold-weather concrete admixtures as a possible technology to include in the program. A technology assessment has been prepared for cold-weather admixtures. A summary of the technology assessment is attached. The summary includes contact information for obtaining a full copy of the report if you are interested.

As part of their effort, Concurrent Technologies is considering aligning their efforts with those of ours in the pooled-fund project, "Extending the Season for Concrete Construction and repair" [TPF-5(003)]. Your comments and responses to Concurrent Technologies may be helpful in determining whether they participate in the project and the level of participation.

I want to thank all the DoTs for taking part in this venture.

Sincerely,

//s//

Charles Korhonen